

Abstract

A blade cartridge for a wet shaving device comprises a housing defining a cavity in which at least two blade assemblies are disposed. Each blade assembly includes a plurality of blades defining respective cutting edges that are substantially parallel to each other and generally face the cutting edges of another blade assembly. The blades are mounted on a carrier, and a wire is spirally wound about the cutting edges of the blades along the length of the cutting edges.